

GIF IT UP 2020

Throughout October, GIF-makers, history nuts, culture enthusiasts, and Internet fans are invited to take part in GIF IT UP 2020, the latest edition of the annual contest hosted by Europeana that challenges people to create animated cultural heritage images and share them online. GIF IT UP is a great and fun way to demonstrate how digital tools can foster culture and creativity. This year, it's more relevant than ever as we all spend so much more of our lives online. The internet is where we now work, play and interact with others and the COVID-19 pandemic has encouraged many cultural institutions and people to ?go digital' and to engage with cultural heritage ? often for the first time.

This year's contest is going even more global in its offer of inspiring and diverse content to reuse and remix and get creative with. Along with Europeana's regular partners, the Digital Public Library of America (DPLA), New Zealand's Digital NZ and National Library of Australia's Trove, two new content partners have joined the fun ? Japan Search, which gives access to digitised cultural heritage from Japan, and DAG Museums in Kolkata, India.
