

Lossless compression

Lossless compression is an algorithm that represent data without losing any information but minimizes file size.