The four conference tracks are:

- Challenges facing users and service providers
- Services enabling research
- A changing environment, changing research
- Working with data

The goal of the organisers is to develop an engaging programme to foster new collaborations, promote innovation and strengthen a wider understanding of e-infrastructures within the research community. For the e-infrastructure and resource providers, the conference will be a chance to work together towards the integrated services and roadmaps that are needed to better serve the user base.
