

New report on 'Culture in the localization of the SDGs: an analysis of the Voluntary Local Reviews'?

The campaign #culture2030goal, formed by global cultural networks united to advocate for the role of culture in sustainable development, in April 2020 started the elaboration of a strategic framework within the context of the UN Decade of Action. Its main goals include:

- a stronger place for culture throughout the implementation of the current global development agenda (the UN 2030 Agenda)
- the adoption of culture as a distinct goal in the post-2030 development agenda
- the adoption of a global agenda for culture.

The campaign, after the 2019 report 'Culture in the Implementation of the 2030 Agenda?', has recently issued the new report on 'Culture in the Localization of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) : An Analysis of the Voluntary Local Reviews (VLRs)'.

The first report assessed the progress on the SDGs and United Nations 2030 Agenda, through analysis of VLRs submitted by member states, discussing the policy developments and the global conversation about culture in development.

This second elaboration highlights the great diversity of how local and regional governments (LRGs) address culture in their sustainable development policies and reporting. Culture is included at various levels of policy and action presented in the majority, but not all, VLRs: the mainstreaming of culture in sustainable development in many of these is partial, instead, ideally, it should feature in VLRs as a main policy driver, recognized at a higher level of planning and policy. On the other hand there are a great number of replicable good practices in the existing VLRs and these should be promoted and adopted within the community of practice of local SDG implementation.
