

RICHES: new policy briefs just published

The RICHES Policy Brief series is enlarged with two new releases:

European Policy Brief. The Economic and Fiscal Dimension of Cultural Heritage. \(April 2016\). This policy brief focuses on the effects of two forms of government support: VAT regulation for CH goods and services and direct subsidies to CH organisations. It presents the results and outcomes of the research that explores the relation between the characteristics of different European countries and the effects of government support in VAT rates for CH organisations, and it describes the actions that can be taken to stimulate a CH-rich and CH-engaged European society.

?European Policy Brief. Towards a Craft Revival: Recalibrating Social, Cultural, Economic and Technological Dynamics. \(April 2016\). This policy brief makes recommendations for unlocking the potential of the craft sector and craft skills, with a focus on maximising their economic value without undermining their social and cultural value. Policy recommendations are formulated from an holistic perspective, which recognizes the interplay of social, cultural, economic, legal and technological dynamics in determining the standing of craft, and realising its potential.

The growing collection of RICHES Policy Briefs and Think Papers is available at <http://www.riches-project.eu/policy-recommendations.html>. They are the focus of the RICHES Policy Seminar in Brussels (23 May 2016).
