The UNCHARTED Policy Seminars

Two policy Seminars have been planned in the UNCHARTED project, as international events, to review policy briefs, recommendations and guidelines, on the basis of the actual needs from the territories of the participating stakeholders.

The first part of the UNCHARTED Policy Seminar took place in Budapest on 8/12/2023 hosted in the premises of the ELTE University.

The title of the event was "The Challenge of Recalibrating the Values of Culture in the Cultural Field".

Representatives of the European institutions and policy makers, at international, national and local levels participated in the debate. The full programme of the event is available online.

The second part of the UNCHARTED Policy Seminar is planned to take place in Barcelona on 25/1/2023, under the coordination of UB, at the Cultural Studies and Resources Center of Pati Manning.

The title of this second seminar is "UNCHARTED: the Barcelona debates on cultural evaluation in cultural policy".

The two seminars conclude the programme of the public events of the UNCHARTED project. The results of the debates will be part of the reflections included in the UNCHARTED Book, which is under editing and published during the 2024 as an open access publication available for all the researchers interested in the studies conducted during the four-years UNCHARTED project.
